Socialistic views. A curious and instructive further extremes. incident has since occurred, which shows the rising temper of those who are submitte! in educational circles. He also has the per share for the year 1911. distinction of being something of a Socialist -that is, he is interested in the subject and an extremely mild type, but it is sufficient to ensure the insertion of his name in an official list of Socialists circulated among the police authorities, who have apparently shown more zeal than discretion in carrying out their orders to keep a strict watch over the public utterances and behaviour of all socialistically inclined. However this may be, Dr. OKAMURA took the occasion of a lecture before the Gifu Educational Society to use some very strong language (for a Japanese) concerning the doings of the authorities about whose intellectual capacity he expressed himself very clearly. The lecture was entitled, "The Home regarded from the point of view of the Civil Code," and in) the course of it the Professor took occasion name had been included in the official list of Socialists, with such as Kotoku, the leader of the Anarchist plot. The authorities were quite ignorant of the difference between Socialists and Anarchists, and were not aware that among Socialists were to be found many of the greatest benefactors of the human race. Such a form of Socialism should be encouraged rather than persecuted, but as long as they had a fool for Home Minister and a lunatic as Minister of Education such a state of things was inevitable. The storm aroused by this. address can be imagined. The endeavours of the police to suppress it were frustrated by an energetic correspondent who teles phoned it to Tokyo, where it all appeared in one of the leading papers. Attempts were then made to explain it away: the Professor came from the North of Japan, where the people were not so polite as in the South, and his remarks must not be taken too seriously, was one of the pleas put forward; while a semi-official paper, party in the afternoon. In the even- The crowd sang "Rule Britannia" which did not get a report of the address, actually went so far as to deny that the Professor ever used such language, that the report was "cooked" by the Tokyo journal, ever anxious to attack the Government. This last story has been heard so often in Japan, however, that it has lost its power. Some months ago another learned Professor attacked the authorities for the procedure in the Anarchist trial in an address before students, and the denial that such remarks had been made followed automatically. There is also independent evidence that Dr. OKAMURA used the language attributed to him, which he would certainly have denied had the reports been incorrect. Naturally, educational circles have been thrown into confusion. The address having been delivered before the teachers in the schools in Gifu, special instructions were issued to them to forget that they ever heard such dreadful language, and it is also rumoured that the person responsible for inviting Dr. OKAMURA to make an address is to be punished—a course which may appear strange to Western ideas, but seems perfectly natural to Japanese. OKAMURA's whole address, moreover, seems to have given great offence to the authorities, for it constituted an attack on the Civil Code for the way it has perpetuated the family system in Japan-a system which, in spite of the obvious fact that it is quite unsuited to modern conditions and is merely a relic of feudal times, is held in almost superstitious reverence. It is perhaps hardly surprising, in a country where public utterances have to be of the most colourless and circumspect nature to escape the notice of the authorities, to find that Dragon of the Third Order for when the bonds of bureaucracy are broken they are torn asunder in a way more vigorous than polite. Even in England Dr. O'RAMURA's remarks about the Ministers of Home Affairs and Education would be considered as "unparliamentary"; in Lapan, cpithet the language denunciation is cast gentler mould, they amount to a gross insult. The long-exercised repression. in fact, tends to result, when matters get to extremes, in an astonishing ebullition. This is more peculiarly characteristic of the Japanese race. Long years of training have taught them to conceal their feelings, whether of grief, pleasure or anger; but when the pressure grows unbearable the resulting explosion acquires all the more force from the long suppression the natural WE have before alluded to the extreme feelings have undergone. There are nervousness displayed by the Japanese observers who see in this the germs of Government since the discovery of the plot | future trouble in Japan, if a policy, which, against the Emperon, and the energy however well meant, can only be considered shown in shadowing all persons professing as military despotism, is pushed to any

The public had not yet realised how much the Imperia! Government confiding in the Dominions regarding foreign policy would bind us closer together. The measure of the good work accomplished by postponed until to-day. the Conference was not in the large number of important resolutions passed, but in the fact that so many problems were discussed in the most friendly manner and in a greater spirit of solidarity than ever displayed at previous Conferences. "The result is that we return to our homes convinced that we have one common ideal, and stronger in Imperial unity."

As His Majesty passed the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught they exchanged bows. When he passed the Queen, husband and wife made a deep reverence to one another.

The King made his responses in a loud and resonant voice. The musical part of the service was enchanting.

The last essentials of the service the anointing and crowning, were performed with extraordinary solemnity. the demeanour of Their Majesties was dignified in the extreme. It was a glorious regal spectacle as Sovereigns robed and crowned with gems sat side by side, while a great sustained shout with a prolonged cadence. "Long live the King" went up from the large assembly.

THE POPULAR OVATION.

The consensus of opinion was that overything was perfect and that the scene was a memorable one.

After Their Majesties reached the Palace, they re-appeared on the balcony and acknowledged the joyous and patriotic cheers and shouts of the multitudes. They received an ovation that will not be forgotten, the officers with swords aloft and the men joining in the cheers of the populace.

SCENES IN LONDON.

LONDON, June 22nd. The Salutes in St. James's Park and a the Tower announced the Coronation morn The weather promised well at four o'clock, although the sky was overcast. The foreeast of the weather was cool, wind, and showery. This caused a rush at Lloyd's yesterday to insure weather risks. Clouds early this morning were high and the air dry. London apparently did not sleep. The usually quiet city streets were alive all night long, singing crowds wending their way to the route of the procession. Troops and Police were moving to take up their positions. The doors of the Abbey were opened at 6.30. The route by that time was througed and there was the greatest animation. Streams of pedestrians and carriages were passing. The sun broke through the fleecy clouds on a decorative scheme which was complete. The decorations conveyed the idea of an untarnished fairyland beflowered, festooned, ti mous stately movement, august and | garlanded, and spanned by splendid triumdignified throughout, with nothing | phalarches. Despite all precautions, the pressure of the crowd in Trafalgar Square was intense. The surging masses broke the cordon, The Coronation gown of the Queen | but the police, reinforced, quickly, regained control. Lord Kitchener was a conspicuous figure. In the vicinity of Buckingham Palace and in the Mall the troops made a gallant show. A novel sight was the peers and The King in the cap of State recalled peeresses attired in their robes proceeding by river from Chelsea and disembarking at the terrace of the House of Commons. They walked in procession across the Palace yard to the Abbey. The stands were densely packed with spectators. The booming of guns announced that Their Majesties. in the third procession, had left Buckingham Palace. A happy coincidence was that the rain ceased and the sun broke out There were tremendous waves of cheering as Their Majesties, with the happiest of smiles, bowed constantly to acknowledge the popular ovation. Lord Kitchener and Lord Roberts were great favourites with the crowds. The continuous thunder of applause was audible over the whole length of the route, and drowned the guns and joy-bells. The State coach, which was drawn by eight _cream horses, was so constructed that people could get a perfect view of Their Majesties. Lord Kitchener and Lord Roberts rode immediately behind. Their Majesties. The Colonial and Indian escorts were loudly cheered. The Indian cavalry made a magnificent colour group.

As Their Majestics neared the Abbey, the sun receded, but happily no rain fell. The Envoys, attended by their suites, entered the Abbey headed by the German Crown Prince and Princess and were conducted in great state to seats in the choir. Thereafter the Prince of Wales in his robes and wearing the decorations of the Garter, and his brothers, in Highland costume, entered at the head of the procession of British. utmost grandeur and solemnity. After the religious service, the Arch bishop of York preaching the sermon, the King took the oath, and was anointed. After this the Archbishop of Canterbusy conducted the crowning coremony, and as His Grace placed the crown upon the King's head, the Abbey rang with cries of "God Save the King." Trumpets sounded, the guns of the Tower boomed and joy-bells rang everywhere.

When the peals of bells announced the crowning the King, the stands in Parliament Square started the National Anthem, which was taken up by the crowds and sung throughout London. The King, sitting on the Throne, received the homage of his subjects. First the Archbishop of Canterbury made homage on behalf of the Church; then the Prince of Wales touched the Crown and kissed the cheek of the King, who drew his son towards him and kissed him affectionately. The Princes of the Blood and the nobility followed.

His Grace the Archbishop of Cauterbury afterwards anointed and crowned Her-Majesty the Queen. The Holy. Communion and the ancient observance of Royal offerings of a pall and wedge of gold were the final scenes in an imposing ceremony.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

LONDON, June 23rd.

The illuminations last night were by far the most extensive and the most brilliant on record. They were marked by many ingenious and new features and fresh adaptations of electricity. At nightfall the whole country was lit up by bonfires on the hilltops from John-o'-Groat's to Land's

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE LOCAL CELEBRATIONS.

The second day's colobrations passed off most successfully. The day was again observed as a holiday, and the streets were throughd by sightseers. At night, however, the whole population seemed to be abroad. Certainly the city was never so crowded as it was last night during the time of the illuminations, and it says much for the police provisions that the traffic arrangements proved so satisfactory, CHINESE SERVICE IN THE CATHEDRAL.

In addition to the Services reported in yesterday's issue a Chinese Service was held at 2.30 Bishop of Victoria preached. Mr. Denman Fuller presided at the organ, and the singing was led by a large surpliced choir from St. The congregation thronged the building to its utmost capacity and the rendering of the Te partook in the festivities, Denm and Hymns by such a vast concourse of Chinese Christians was deeply impressive.

H. E. THE GOVERNOR'S RECEPTION

by H. E. The Governor on Thursday night was charmed with the appearance of the Public Gardens, which were illuminated by many hundreds of Japanese white-and-red lanterns, making the place look a veritable fairyland. Looking down on the scene from the highest elevation, where a high arch resembling a Japanese torii, was outlined by red lanterns, the scone was exceedingly pretty. A good view of the harbour was obtainable and the warships picked out in electric lights seemed part of the picture. The Japanese fireworks were excellent. One of the set pieces showing a crown and the words "God save the King" measured 360 feet by 36 feet. Another patriotic piece was the Union Jack in coloured lights and six revolving wheels. According to the programme no fewer than 172 rockets were let off, and each had its special description. The Band of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry and the Pipes of the 126th Baluchistan Infantry played in the gardens during the evening, and all present will long retain pleasant recollections of this particular feature of the Coronation celebrations.

CORONATION DAY AT QUEEN'S COLLEGE.

The Coronation was marked at the leading school in the Colony by a feast in which all the students participated. The large Central Hall was filled with circular tables at which about eight boys were seated in each case. The non-Chinese boys were accommodated in the verandalis. Punctually at 12.10 the students entered and took their places. At 12.20 the Headmaster and the Director of Education mounted the dais and the latter read to the assembled students a Coronation address from His calling for three cheers for the King, which were enthusiastically given. Then everyone settled down to the serious business of the banquet before them. The European staff in the meantime had mounted the dais and taken their seats at a long table facing the body of the Hall which had been specially built up for the occasion.

During the feast Mee Choung took two flashlight pictures, and the proceedings were further enlivned by the reading by its author of the "Coronation Ode" which appeared in the Coronation number of this journal. Replete and happy, the vast mass streamed out into the College grounds at 2.15, and then the proceedings were concluded by the firing of eight enormous strings of crackers from the wing verandahs, the noise of which must truly have been heard in Kowloon. So ended a function which will remain long remembered in the

THE DECORATIONS.

It is safe to say that the decorations which here beautified Hongkong during the last two Everyone who attended the reception given | days have never been excelled. The coolie in his lowly tenement house has combined with the large commercial hong and the resident of the Peak in developing a scheme which gives the Colony the appearance of an Arcadian city. The cares and worries of business have been cast aside. In fact, as the resident wanders through the streets admiring the decorations and viewing the rejoicings of this cosmopolitan community he feels that he is in an enchanted city where the troubles of every-day life are Prominent in the scheme of decorations i the transformation of Royal Statue Square. It is circumferenced by high flugstaffs draped with red and white cloth, and from one to the other of these poles chains of greenery droop, while from each standard is hung a circle of greenery and above all vari-coloured flags flutter in the breeze. Strings of lanterns are suspended from the statue of Queen Victoria to the four corners of the square, while other rows-enclose-the-four sides. The new Law Courts are outlined with lanterns, likewise the Hongkong Club, which has also a brilliant flag display. Messrs. Butterfield & Swire's and the other buildings in the vicinity of the Club, as well as the V.R.C., are adorned with flags and lanterns. The Naval Offices are dressed with bunting, while the Army Officers' quarters look very conspicuous in their draping of royal purple. The pillars of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank are draped with red and white cloth, while above the entrance in Des Voux Road is a large star, and surmounting the dome a crown, on either side of which stand out conspicuously the letters "G. R." Queen's Buildings, Prince's Buildings, Alexa dra Buildings, St. George's Buildings, York Buildings and King's Buildings are all handsomely dressed with bunting and arrayed with lanterns. The Fish Lantern procession, which must have extended over a mile in length, was again gazed upon by admiring crowds as it threaded sort of frenzy as they sought to stimulate the way from Bowrington through the city last night. It was a brilliant display of finny monsters, mermen and mermaids and strange beasts which are only to be encountered in the imaginative fauna of China. Headed by a group boaring excellent lantern pictures of one likely to be remembered. the Royal family, the procession left Wanchai at eight o'clock. All along the route the streets were blocked with spectators who witnessed as weird and as strange a collection of the piscatorial species as it is possible to imagine. THE ILLUMINATIONS.

Beautiful as the Colony looked by daylight, the effect was transcendently picturesque when darkness closed in and the various decorations were illuminated. The subdued lights of myriads of red lanterns lit up tlongkong from the waterfront to the Peak, and seen from the water the scene was a very imposing one. For a while the warships manipulated their searchlights adding to the weird charm of the scene At 9.45 a flery dragon emerged from behind the Tamar and slowly wended its way up the harbour. Graca & Co. exhibited an artistic design of one of the oldest postage stamps issued in the Colony, the two cent "rose" of 1880 Above the design were the words, "God Save the King and Queen," and below was the inscription, "Long Live the Philatelic King. Going from street to street the sightsoor always discovered some new design of illumination, quaint and distinctly Oriental, and livered to admire the artistic tinselled arches which glistened under the glow of innumerable lights. And it was beneath these arches that Chinese theatricals held av av. With clash of cymbal, clang of gong, song and weird Chinese music, they attracted large crowds of natives, who were apparently so deeply interested that they "failed to observe the rule of the road," and were deaf to the shouts of passing riesha coolies, who, with difficulty, forced a passage to bear their fares on to other sights. The trams were not running between Arsenal and Whitty Streets until after eleven

FROM THE WATER.

The scene from the water was one not likely to be forgotten, and the thousands who gazed on it with rapture realised that it was indeed the eight of a lifetime. On ordinary occasions Hongkong looks lovely by day and by night. but last night it was intensified. The universal scheme of red, in which stood revealed such beautiful outlines as the new Law Courts, the Post Office, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank King's Buildings, etc., as well as the larger detail. It was magnificent.

Kowloon made a brave show, the most conspicuous feature being the Time Ball Station and Signal Station outlined in red Many people took advantage of various sailing arrangements to view the scene from the THE MILITARY TATTOO.

Of the many brilliant spectacles witnessed last evening, none was more picturesque than the K.O.Y.L.I. Tattoo, which was held on the ground of the Hongkong Cricket Club. His Excellency the Governor and the American delegates witnessed the display from the Honekong Club, while spectators clustered thickly on the surrounding buildings and filled the reads on the four sides of the Cricket ground. THE KHATTOCK DANCE.

Not the least interesting feature of the Coronation Celebrations was the Khattook dance given at Kowloon by men of the Baluchi Regiment. The vacant ground between the railway and the sea near Holts wharf was enclosed for the occasion, and here in the light of a large wood fire the Baluchis gave their picturesque dance. Some forty men, to the strains of the tom-toms and reed instruments like chanters, went through various evolutions. These consisted of a slow rhythmic movement of the body, then a wild dash of abandon, but with it all good time was kept. The excitement I did not seem to be limited to the dencers, and the musicians occasionally indulged in a wild dancers to greater exertions. The second contingent carried swords, and they imparted more barbaric aspect to the scene, throwing themselves around with even greater abandon than the others. It was a unique spectacle, and

CORONATION ANECDOTES.

WHEN SEATS WERE SOLD IN THE ABBEY.

Earl of Durham

THE LAST CORONATION BANQUET, A most interesting account of the Coronation Service has been compiled by Canon Douglas Macleans and published under the title of "The Great Solemnity of the Coronation of a King and Queen," with an introduction by the Bishop of Salisbury. (George Allen.) "So much impressiveness is added to the Coronation comony by a knowledge of its historical origin that Conon Macleane's chapters will be Concerning the anointing oil, he relates James to be used for the sick.

ANOINTI GOIL "We know the ingredients for Charles I.'s anointing -viz., oil of orange flowers and of jasmine blended with Spanish oil of been, distilled oil of roses, distilled oil of cinnamon, extract of white flowers of benzoine, ambergis, musk, civet. These were mixed in a perphyry jar, then placed in a porcelain vase over warm ashes, and spirit of roses added."

In comparison with the vered question of Coronation seats to-day it is interesting to read in a note that the "Annual Register" (1761. page 215) mentions that the price of a good place at Edward II.'s and Edward III.'s Coronation (presumably to see the procession) was a halfpenny; at Richard II.'s and Henry IV.'s a penny; at Henry V.'s a half-great (twopence). "But Coronations became so frequent that the price went back to almost nothing.

"From Edward IV., however, to Henry VII a half-groat seems to have been the fee. It rose at the next three Coronations to a great at Elizabeth's to a tester; at James I.'s and Charles I.'s (when, owing to the pest, the coming of sightseers from London was forbidden) to a shilling; at Charles II.'s and James II.'s to half-a-crown; at the next three Coronations to a crown; and to see George II. crowned some gave half-a-guinea. The Coronation banquot has not been revived since George IV is time, and the reason of its desnetude is made fairly clear by the following account:---

"The King quitted the hall at a quarter before eight o'clock; afterwards the company was indiscriminately admitted to partake of such refreshments as remained on the tables of the

"indiscriminate admission to partake of such refreshments as remained "appears to have been a disgraceful soramble, in which a number of silver-gilt vessels and ornaments were seized, and a general plunder only averted by the strennous action of the Lord Great Chamberlain.

"A scandalous scene followed :-

"Those in the gallery poured down the different stairs and passages to he festive board, which was vigorously attracked. In a few moments every bottle was emptied of its contents and fresh supplies obtained. In solids the work of devastation was equally florce; aweetments, pastry, and confectionery of every kind vanished like lightning.

THEFTS AT THE BANQUET, "'Arms were everywhere seen stretched forward, breaking and destroying the table or aments as trophies. Thus, baskets, flowerpots, vases, and figures were everywhere disappearing and these were followed by spoons, olates, dishes, etc.

"These last were of powter engraved with the Royal Arms and letters "Geo. IV." and were therefore greatly coveted."

"The purilists stat ened at the doors, howover, and disguised in ruffs and trunkhose stripped even ladies of their booty. "'A. similarly disgaceful sceno, 'says Jones,

THE MARYS' GIFT TO THE QUEEN

A TOTAL OF £11,800.

The executive committee and county representatives who have organized the Marys' Coronation Gift to the Queen met at the National Society's Hall, Westminster, on the 1st inst., to make final arrangements for presenting the gift to her Majesty. Lady Mary Trefusia presided.

It was announced that the fund amounted to £11 800, and it is probable that a few further subscriptions may yet be received from distant parts. The subscriptions came from women and girls bearing the names of Mary, May, Maria, Marian, Marion, Marie, and Miriam in all parts of the Empire, as well as from those. of British birth in every foreign country of the world. From the Continent particularly a large number of subscriptions have been received.

The Queen had consented to receive a deputation at Buckingham Palace, when her Majesty's views with reference to the disposition of the money will be ascertained.

The detailed returns have not yet heen prepared, but according to the figures now available Yorkshire heads the list of counties in the United Kingdom with 30,000 subscribers. In Devonshire there are 14,000. In Norfolk 10,000 in Ayrshire 5,085 (the highest for Scotland), and in County Down 2,654 the highest for Ireland).

MURDER AT SAMSHUIPO.

A ghastly murder is reported as having occurred at Samshuipo. On Thursday, while the staff of excise officers were in Hongkong at the Coronation celebrations, the chief excise officer remained behind. While asleep on his bed, the cook is alleged to have slashed him across the throat with a chopper. The victim managed to get out of bed, and holding his throat went to the police station. There he was so exhausted that he was unable to speak, but he is stated to have accused the cook in writing. Shortly afterwards he died. When the police proceeded to the house the cook was missing.

Pneumonia and Pleurisy After Effects. Wasting and Weakness—

Happy and cheerful with abundance of energy and good spirits, is how Miss Dunford describes herself from the day she commenced to take Phosferine. Yet before she found relief in Phosferine words failed to express the miserable torments she endured from the effects of pneumonia and pleurisy, the aches, sleeplessness, neuralgia, and wasting, which even doctors failed to remedy. No wonder Miss Dunford feels (after two years of such suffering without ease or rest for the body) that Phosferine "has given her a new and better lease of life," for she declares it is entirely. owing to Phosferine that she is actively busy again. Every overwrought wage-carning woman will find a message of hope in Miss Dunford's experience, with its splendid assurance of renewed nervous vitality, and absolute prevention of tissue wasting.

Completely Overcome.

Miss Daisy Dunford, High-Street, Shrewton, Wilts, writes: - "I have found Phosferine to be a wonderful remedy. Some two years ago I hadpneumonia and pleurisy, which left me with terrible pains in my back and legs. Two doctors prescribed for me, but gave me not the slightest relief. I could not sit, lie down or sleep, on account of the incessant agony, and I became so exceedingly weak and wasted that my friends were seriously alarmed. My appetite failed, and the little food I ate caused indigestion; my life was nothing but a prolonged torture. The doctors said it was a form of neuralgia and sciatica, but the words do not convey any idea of my fearful state. I thought I would give Phosferine a trial, which I did, and after taking it for a little while, the pains were not nearly so acute, and finally left me altogether. I regained flesh, felt stronger, the indigestion entirely disappeared, and now, thanks to its marvellous aid, my health and strength, is completely restored. I cannot put into words my gratitude for the good Phosferine has done me, for I feel it has given me a new and better lease of life."

CLEARING OUT HAD CHARACTERS.

The Vicercy has just appointed a man nemed Kong, a resident of Honam, to clear out the bad characters from the Kwong Chow Prefecture This man, who is a Han-lin graduate, is to receive a salary of Tls. 300 per month tegether with expenses and the supreme control of his subordinstes. He is not a military officer and people think that he will not be much of a success. He is not much esteemed in Honan because of his action over the proposed volunteers, and some days ago the residents of the island threatened to burn down his house, which is now guarded day and night by special guards at the expense of the Kai-fong.

NATIVE DOCTORS. A well-known citizen, having become disgusted with the ignorance and want of skill shown by native medical men, sent in a memorial to the Chief of Police asking him to issue an order that no man be allowed to practice medicine unless he is able to show his knowledge by a well-written essay on some medical subject The Taotai refused to grant the request, saying that a doctor's reputation depends on his skill and experience and not on his ability as an essayist. The Taotai agreed, however, that in the cause of public safety, semething should be done to restrict the practice of the multitudinous quacks with which this city abounds, and promised to give the matter his consideration.

June 20th.

THE VICEROY'S FATHER. In spite of the protest from the Press the Viceroy's father has refused to stay here lenger and yesterday he went on board the river craiser Po Pile en route for Shanghai vid Hongkong. F MUZZLING THE PRESS.

Part reported last-week, the Press-is notallowed to publish any telegrams in connection with the railway nationalization scheme, and for several days past no telegrams have appeared. This hast caused a good deal of indignation among the people, as it is feared that the Government is working against the wishes of the people and is afraid that the news of its actions will arouse public remonstrance. There is consequently much suppressed excitement and larger numbers of soldiers have been put on night-duty to be in readiness in case of an emergency. Most people consider that the Government would have been better advised to allow all railway news to be published.

Yesterday the exchange between Canton subsidiary coin and Hongkong bank-notes was only 5½ per cent., while in the evening the rate was a little less. This is the lowest that has been known for some years past, and the reason is said to lie in the fact that during the past few days a very large number of Hongkong notes have been brought to Canton and there is now not much demand for them.

A LEGAL ADVISER. It is reported here that the Viceroy has engaged the services of a well-known Hongkong lawyer to act as his agent in all negotiations between the Kwangtung and Hongkong authorities. This gentleman's services will be of particular value in extradition cases and in invoking the aid of the Hongkong authorities in the capture of rebels or criminals escaped from this province.

BAD CHARACTERS.

As formerly reported, the Provincial Government is taking active steps to drive out the bad characters from the various districts, but the work is greatly hampered from want of men. The Viceroy has therefore ordered General Lung to remove three additional regiments from Kwong Sai, and these will assist in the 'pacification" of the Ying Tak and Ching Yuon Districts.

ROBBERS AT LIN CHOW. The Lin Chow Prefecture is again in a disturbed state owing to the large number of banditti in the district. These have carried on their depredations to such an extent as to cause the local landowners to raise a militia among the villages.

PRISON OUTBREAK.

There has been a good deal of trouble in the Ying Tak District lately, and the gaol attached to the District Magistrate's Yamen contained over 80 of the most desperate ruffians in the tion tolocality. At 11 p.m. a few nights -go they managed to make a great hole in one of the walls, | 750[through which they got into the Yamen grounds. They then found the gaoler, whom they gagged and bound. Escaping from the Yamen they were opposed by a gate-keeper, whom they stabbed. They then divided into two bodies, and, at different points, swarmed over the city wall and escaped into the open country. Only four have been re-arrested, and these were strangers to the district. A reward has been offered for the apprehension of the fugitives, but they are not likely to be found.

A GENERAL IN DISGUISE. General Lung, the officer in command of the troops from Kwong Sai, fears that his men may disobey the military rules when off duty and so cause a disturbance in the City. To find out for himself what the mon really were doing during their hours of liberty, he disguised himself on several occasions as a humble citizen and took walks throughout the city, but happily found nothing to complain of in the conduct of his men.

Yesterday two notorious robbers were brough t out of Nam Hai Gaol and taken to the execution ground and there suffered decapitation. On the way they each smoked cigars and laughed and talked to each other as though they were going to a feast rather than to death. As these men had been errested and extradited from Hongkong the British Consul-General was informed of the matter...

SICKNESS IN THE CITY.

During the past few days the weather has been more than usually hot and a largely increased amount of sickness is the result. Plague is still very had and various forms of skin disease is rife. I hear that the Vicercy was inoculated against plague a few days ago, and that he called upon the citizens to follow his example. He has also given a handsome dona. tion to one of the foreign hospitals that has aoue good work in distributing plague serum-In spite of this good example the bulk of the people pin their faith to the horrible nostrums sold by quack doctors and the charms of the Taoist priests.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

A PROPELLER TO LESSEN AIR RESISTANCE. At first sight, the plan of using a head windmill on fast vehicles to reduce air resistance and seriously proposed, however, by M. Constantin, quality of medicinal plants has been noted by increase speed seems strange and fanciful. It is French inventor, and he has given weight to his suggestion by causing a model aluminum wagon of 2½ pounds to be driven forward with surprising energy by a windmill turned by a head wind. The windmill is a kind of conical screw, with blades inclined forward. It is placed at the front of the wagon and its axis is so geared to the wheels that they are turned forward when the scrow is rotated by the breeze it meets. Against the mild aircurrent of an ordinary electric fan, the little wagon promptly started ahead instead of being blown back. It developed much speed and was capable of climbing steep grades of more than 6 per cent., and with a stronger fan it easily carried a load of mere than 20 pounds. If the hopes thus set up are realized, suitable screws will not only anable locamotives, motor cars, etc., to bore thr ugh the air with a material saving of power, but will give sailing vessels a means of overcoming head winds.

THE BEST WATERPROOFING. Seeking a waterproofing suitable for military clocks as well as tents, French Army officials have decided that acetate of aluminum is better than rubber, boiled linseed oil, insoluble gelatine, shellae, or any other of the materials to be had. M. Balland adds 40 l parts of water to one part of commercial acetate of aluminum solution, and fabrics are seaked in the mixture for 24 hours, then dried in air. It is claimed that cloth is not only made waterproof, but is left supple and sufficiently porous for air to pass through it.

WATCHING CORALS GROW. In his studies of Florida corals, Dr. T. W Vaughau has isolated about 200 colonies, and by his annual measurements he expects to determine the growth rate for various species. So far his results tend to confirm the estimate of Prof. J. S. Gardiner that coral reefs may increase a fathom in 60 years—a rate higher than has been generally accepted. HOT AIR POISONING.

In spite of its advantages, heating by the air proves to be not always free from risk to health-When the heaters are defective, carbon monoxide from coal-gas may pass into the air supply, and this - in the proportion of one thousandth or even much less -may produce slow poisoning of very serious degree. In a warning to the Paris Acad my of Medicine, Drs. Courmount and Mouriquand have mentioned an experience in a large hotel. The furnaces were found to be very faulty, so that the air of some rooms was much contaminated with the carbon monoxide, and in those rooms 35 persons suffered bad effects from the poisoning. These effects were various. They included digestive troubles, such nervous disorders as vertigo, fatigue, iusomnia and neuralgia, and general symptoms like pailor and loss of flesh. The use of a mixture of coal-gas and water-gas for heating purposes, as being tried in some cities, seems to be a positive source of danger, causing direct increase in mortulity. The action of the carbon monoxide is slow and insidious, and poisoning may be so far advanced before discovery that change to better conditions will not readily bring improvement

COTTON-SEED OIL RUBBER.

Cellulose is included among the many materials used in rubber substitutes. According to a recent patent, cotton or other cellulose is soaked in butyric acid, removed and dried, and then placed in cotton-seed oil in which 1 to 5 per cent. of gum elemi has been dissolved by gentle heat. The cotton forms only about 5 per cent. of the mixture. Sulphur chloride equal to about 20 per cent. of the weight of the oil is dissolved in a solvent like paraffin oil, and a portion-perhaps, a third - of the solution is added to the cotton and oil mixture. In 8 to 12 hours the cotton dissolves. Oxide or carbonate of-calcium or magnesium is added to neutralize the acid, and the remainder of the sulphur chloride solution is then poured in. On pouring into moulds-for golf balls, motor tyres or other purpose—the material hardens in an hour.

SNOW BLINDNESS. Travellers in regions of snow and sunshine should wear glasses opaque to ultra-violet light This is the conclusion of Prof. J. von Kowalski whose observations in Switzerland have shown that snow reflects the ultra-violet rays of sanlight almost completely, and have thus explained the discomfort to the eyes in snowy lands.

AN OLD ENGINE AND A HISTORICAL

HAMMER. The passing of two notable old machines is a reminder of the amount of labour man's mechanical servants may perform, and of the improvement that has been made. A beam engine of 100 horse-power, which began operaing in 1820, has just been stopped and condemned at the Brownfield Mills, Manchester, England. The engine weighs 45 tons; it has a steam-jacketed cylinder of 364 inches, a stroke of 7½ feet, and the fly-wheel of 24 feet in diameter has run at 24 revolutions per minute. The room necessary was 40 feet long by 40 high and 15 wide. The other machine that has served its time is a steam-hammer of the Krupp works at Essen, Germany, which was originally a radical innovation and for 30 years the most powerful tool in the forge-shop, but was superseded and on Mar. 4th was mustered out with an appropriate celebration after 50 years of use. It had a 50-ton ram and a 1,000-ton anvil. The cylinder had a diameter of 57½ inches, the stroke was 10½ feet, and the piston rod was 102 inches in diameter. The steam-valve was manipulated by hand, at a rate of 10 or 12 blows per minute. A 2,000ton forging press lowered the hammer's place in 1890, and now other presses have crowded it out completely.

WEATHER AND MEDICINE.

A remarkable influence of the weather on the Low temperature and lack of sunshine diminish the active principles to a striking degree, but variation of rainfall apparently has little effect, as the moisture in plants remains the same in dry as in wet years Observations during the last five years showed that the aconitine yielded by aconite ranged from 0.042 per cent, in 1909 to 0.104 in 1907. Other plants gove like results, and proved that 1909 and 1910 developed only half as much of the active principles in German plants as the two preceding years.

A NEW BUILDING MATERIAL. A unique test in Paris has revealed the wearing qualities of a new building material. A flight of stairs was made of concrete containing carborundum, which is nearly as hard as the diamond, and the surface has withstood the travel of 14,000,000 persons with no signs of wear. Such resistance is not approached in marble or granite.

THE BLOOD is the LIFE of the FLESH

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills-What they are and Their Four Principal Ingredients. what they do.

It is an established fact that all diseases spring from one source, namely: Impurity of the Blood. Therefore our strength, health, and life depend upon the vital fluid. When the various passages become clogged, and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted, and diseased, thus causing pains, sickness, and distress of every name; our strength is exhausted; and if Nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humours, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will be extinguished. How important, then, that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open, and if assistance is necessary to have at hand that invaluable remedy, Dr. MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS, manufactured from plants and roots which grow around the mountain cliffs in Nature's garden, for the health and recovery of diseased man.

One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a SUDORIFIC, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in throwing out the finer parts of the corruption within.

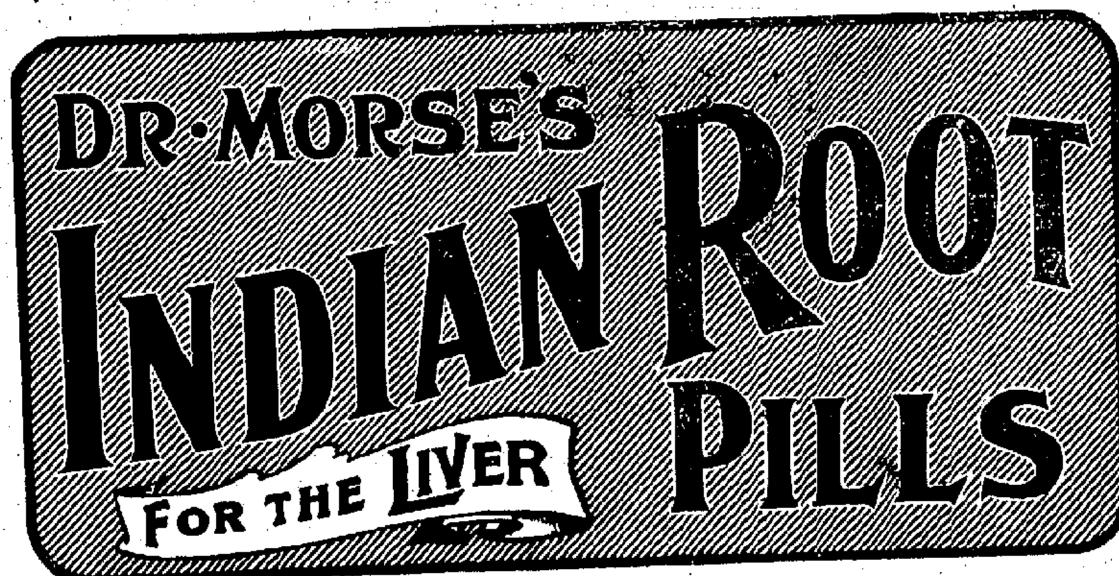

The second is a plant which is an EXPECTORANT that opens and unclogs the passage to the lungs, and thus in a soothing manner performs its duty by throwing off the phlegm and other humours from the lungs by copious spitting.

The third is a DIURETIC, which gives ease and double strength to the Kidneys; thus encouraged, they draw large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is thrown out bountifully by the urinary or water passages, and which could not have been discharged in any other way. The fourth is a CATHARTIC, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood, and the coarser particles of impurity which cannot pass by the other outlets are thus taken up and conveyed off in large quantities by the bowels.

From the foregoing it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only enter the stomach, but become united with the blood, for they find the way to every part, and completely root out and cleanse the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain are driven from the system, for they cannot remain when the body becomes pure and clean.

Du. Morse's Indian Root Pills are an efficient, reliable, and safe remedy placed on the market at a price within the reach of all. The Pills being sugar-coated, are pleasant to take, and retain their full medicinal properties. They are packed in amber-coloured bottles—not in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes—and are thus always fresh and clean, impervious to moisture, amber-coloured bottles—not in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes—and are thus always fresh and clean, impervious to moisture. unaffected by climatic conditions, and do not deteriorate by keeping as all liquid medicines do.

CHAPTER IX.

"I don't quite like the iden!" "Nonsense. It is a most usual ocurrence now-adoys. I assure you, even among the nobility." "What! To take in lodgers?"

"Paying guests! My dear. You must not use such a vulgar term as lodgers!" "Well, it comes to the same thing in the end," said the other bluntly. She was a young woman who did not indulge in conversational garbage: her thoughs went direct to the point, and she expressed them correspondingly. Her face was somewhat too serious for her six and twenty years and her manner lacked the spontaneousness of youth. Soft fair hair was brushed back loosely from a broad, low brow and gathered into one thick coil at the nape of her neck. Her eyes, half grey, half blue, were as clear and truthful as a child's, but the month with its large mobile curves was the month of a woman, strong in the possibilities of a woman's tenderness. She was dressed very simply in a plain grey gown, the simplicity of which accentuated the soft lines of her figure.

The Davenants possessed a long pedigree, but a somewhat short purse. Upon the death of their parents they found themselves left with only a slender income. Austin had trodden for some years the thorny but fascinating path of literature, and was now beginning to make a name. Agatha kept house for her brother, while the other sister. Olive, occupied the position of governess-companion in a wealthy family who passed most of their time abroad

A pile of sewing lay by Agatha's side, ugly uninteresting sewing; a skirt that wanted braiding and table-cloths that needed darus,

"Miss Mayne offers remarkably hamisome terms; think what a help she would be financially, and it would be so nice for you to have a companion; it must be dull at times."

"What is Miss Mayne like?" asked Agatha, doubtfully, Her quiet home life made her rather shy of strangers. "Have you seen her?" "Oh, yes. Edward told me all about her, she has opened an account at his bank and has placed a large sum to her credit. She explained to him that she has been living in the country, but, having had a legacy left to her, she had come to town. She said she knew no one in London, but was desirous of making her home. there and wanted to find some nice people who could introduce her to good society. I immediately thought of you." "Did you like her?" queried Agatha.

"Yes. She is distinguished looking and there is something very fascinating about her personality. Of one thing I am quite sure, she is a lady. You need have no doubts on that "I have more on the score that we shall not be able to provide her with enough gaiety. I do not go out much."

"Well, my dear, that is your own fault, you could go if you liked. Your brother as a coming famous novelist has the entrée to some of the best houses."

Agatha listened, her doubts were gradually being dispelled. "I must talk it over with Austin," she said. "I could not settle anything until I were certain that he would like it."

"As it happened Austin did not like it. "We don't want a stranger coming in to upset the house," he said, crossly. She will always be in the way when she is least wanted and will expect me to indulge in conversation with her when I am deep in my work and can think of nothing else."

"No one would make you polite against your will," said Agatha, with a mischevious look in her eyes.

Devenant laughed and ran his fingers through his thick fair hair. He was something like his sister, but his hair was chestnut and his eyes had more grey, less blue, in them than hers. He had a serious, somewhat stern face, with a look of latent strongth.

"Would you like this person to come?" he asked.

"She offers very liberal terms," becau Agatha.

"Oh, confound the terms," he answered; "we have enough bread and cheese, thankigoodness, to make us independent of a boarder. But if you want her that's a different matter, I daresay it is lonely for you when I am shut up in Iny study all day. Do you want to have her,

And Agathe, mentally seeing other items in the household than the bread and cheese of which her brother spoke, decided that she did.
So Mrs Rackham having made preliminary arrangements, Miss Reta Mayne arrived at Staffa House. It was a bright, modern house on the Surrey side of Albert Bridge, a stone's throw from Battersea Park and the river Thames; the latter, with its slow trailing barges, picturesque brown sails and busy steamers was a never-ending source of pleasure to Austin and his sister.

To Reta Mayne, fresh from the country, the stretch of green trees with the broad grey river beyond was particularly attractive. She arrived one afternoon in late autumn, when the landscape in her native country would be one glorious scheme of crimson, gold and brown. She came in a cab piled high with luggage. Austin, busy writing in his study, heard the repeated thad of boxes on the stairs.

"Bless the woman," he thought, running his pen through a sectence. "She seems to have brought enough clothes to stock a shop! What a confounded nuisance this noise is "

Thump, thump, bang, bang! A sheet of manuscript was torn up and thrown into the waste-paper bask, and an exclamation, short and decisive, was murmured under the author's breath.

The door opened and Agatha, with anxious face, looked in. "Oh! Austin! One of Miss Mayne boxes is so heavy. The cabman can't get_it up by himself and I don't like to let Jane try. Could you-" she hesitated. "Do you think-?"

Davenant threw down his pen. He strode out of the room, and with the aid of his strong arms and stalwart shoulders Miss Mayne's heavy trunk was taken up to her room. As he came downstairs again, his face flushed with his exertion, the paying guest was standing in the hall. The lamplight fell on her straight, young figure in its gown of purple cloth, and showed up the warm ivory of her skin and the rich brown of her hair She raised her head as he came down stairs and coming forward with a little smile, held out her hand.

"I am so sorry to be a trouble to you the" moment I come," she said, in a voice which was singularly low and clear. Austin just touched the tips of the well-gloved

"Pray, don't mention it," he said, and with a slight bow, he returned to his study and shut the door.

MUSICAL WONDER CHILD.

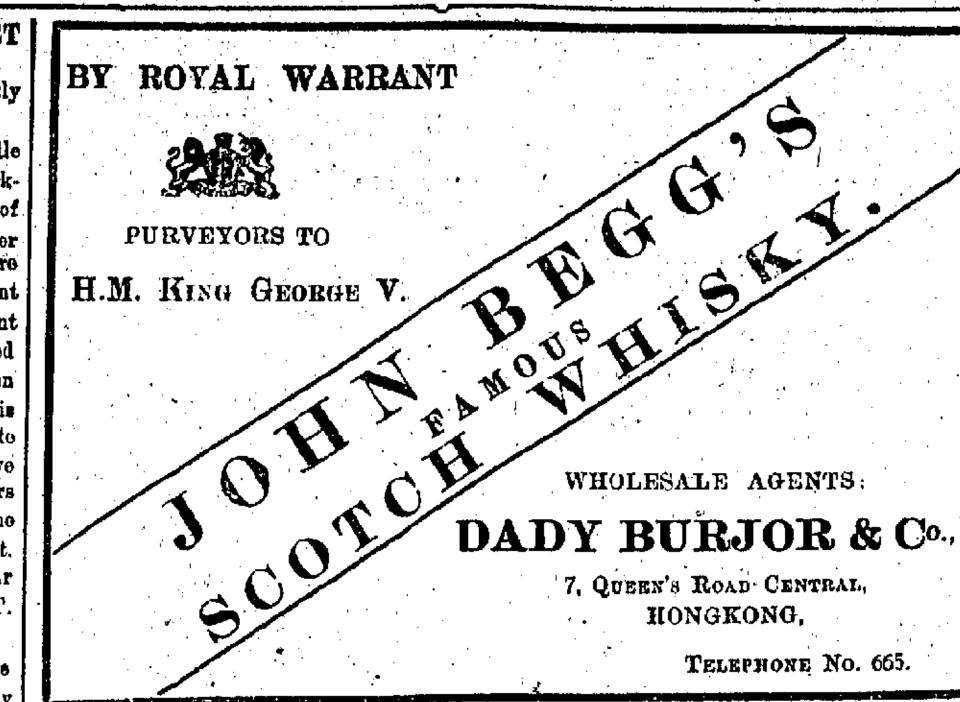

PERFORMANCE BEFORE THE QUEEN,

A child musician of astonishing gifts, Erwin Nyigegyhuzi, an Hungarian boy of eight, played several pianoforte pieces at Buckingham Palace on the afternoon of the 1st inst. by command of \mathbf{the} Queen,

Her Majesty, with whom were the Prince of Wales, Princess Mary, and Prince John, took the greatest interest in the performance, and invited the boy to play several additional pieces after hearing a fugue of Buch, brought to the Imperial Chancellor finds Rachmaninoff's well-known prelude, Mozart's expression in the publication to-night of the "The Violet," and Chopin's E. minor valse. The little genius also improvised upon a theme selected by one of her Majesty's ladies in wait-

The boy showed the greatest delight at the high honour conferred upon him. He is a fraillooking, pale child, who scarcely looks his eight years. His father, a chorister in the Budapest Opera House, explained to a Press reporter that he had not the means to educate his son, and that was his reason for coming to England. The difficulty had now been overcome, and a scholarship at the Berlin Consegvatoire had been secured through the instrumentality of Herr

The child's musical powers were fully tested. by me (writes a musical critic). The young musician first pl yed three fugues from Bach's "Forty-eight" from memory, and then transposed each of them, without hesitation, into a key which I suggested at hazard. I was then asked to suggest a theme on which he would improv se. I played on the piane, once only, a phrase of about three bars, and the boy developed it to some length with lucidity. He afterwards wrote on paper my theme. I tested his sense of ab olute pitch by playing a series of chords first common chords and simple discords, and then more elaborate discords a d the child, paced out of sight of the piane. wrote down each one of them correctly.

following letter from the Emperor: William :--

My Dear von B-thmann Hollweg,-It is with satisfaction that I have seen from your report that since the successful passage of the law concerning the Constitution of Alsace-Lorraine, the Imper al Insurance Bill has also been adopted by the Reichstag. The sucand after vanquishing manifold difficulties. of these two important measures in a manuer Empire, is a happy result which is due not least to your personal intervention and to your statesmenlike skill and determined labours. I cannot, therefore, refrain from expressing to you my warmest congratulations and my Imperial gratitude upon this success. In order, however, to give further a special expression to my recognition and my good will I have presented you with the accompanying portrait of myself. When you look at it remember always the cordial gratitude of your well-disposed William I.R.

The labours of the Imperial Ministry of the Interior have been rewarded by the decoration of a large number of officials, and the Scoretary of State, Dr. Delbrück, who has been in charge of both the important measures referred to by the Emperor, has been given the Grand Cross of the Order of the Red Engle with oak leaves and brilliants.
